This is ridiculous. I subscribed to XM radio because I was tired of listening to 5 minutes of broadcasting & 10 minutes of commercials. I was tired of listening to the same programs over & over again.

I PAY for XM service, and it is WELL worth it. They should be able to broadcast whatever they want to, in any market they want to. When & if they start broadcasting things I don't like, I will unsubscribe. Let the consumer decide, not government.

For whatever it is worth, since I subscribed to XM 5 months ago I told 4 friends about it, all of whom subscribed also, none of us has listened to a FM station since. Maybe that should tell you something about having a choice. If FM wants to regain their listeners they need to rethink their broadcasting techniques to make the audience WANT to tune in, NOT seek government intervention, FORCING us to tune in.
